

Fairfield Taps by Samuel Heath

Samuel Heath's Fairfield Tap collection is revitalising the bathroom brassware market. This exquisite range embodies a move away from harsh angular lines and towards softer shapes of the post-modernist trend. The range also includes a choice of ceramic, wood or metal levers.

The Fairfield collection is a compilation of design classics which are manufactured from the highest quality brass available. The combination of design ingenuity and craftsmanship result in a collection which sits at the forefront in the industry.

Fairfield Tap Collection Overview

The attention to detail and careful proportioning of each tap has produced a range that is set apart from all others. This is not a collection looking to recreate High Victorian drama, but one in-tune with a more restrained and classical style.

Samuel Heath is where contemporary and traditional meet; a bastion for uncompromising design ideals and technological advancement which, married together, ensure both form and function.
